QUEEN OF MEDINA COUNTY FAIR ELECTED.

Miss Dorothy Mangold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Mangold, of Castroville was chosen Queen of the Medina County Fair at a drawing held Wednesday night, September 9, at the benefit dance at Electric Park Hall, in Castroville.

Each year a different town or community is granted the representative to reign over the royalty of the Fair, this year the honor falling to Castroville. Other communities so favored in the past are D'Hanis, Dunlay and Cliff.

Castroville is noted for its beautiful floats entered each year in the parade, and we feel sure a background beautiful and befitting royalty will feature Miss Mangold's float.

The honor of the Queen of the Medina County Fair implies that the Queen will reign over the Fair as representative of the entire County, ride in prominent place in the parade on opening day, reign at the coronation ceremonies when she is crowned by the President of the Fair Association, and be honoree of the closing dance which is known as the Queen's Ball.

Miss Mangold is congratulated.

This community was surprised and shocked Saturday afternoon when news spread that a little child, a boy judged to be about two and a half years old, had been found by Miss Emma Graff wandering in the lane near the Charles Graff home about three miles nearly east of Hondo. It was near mid-afternoon of a blistering hot day. The youngster was clothed only in coveralls and sandals and was hatless. His cries for his mother attracted attention to his presence and when found his nose was bleeding and he was almost famished for water.

Sheriff C. J. Schuehle was notified at once, brought the child to Hondo, and got busy immediately in an effort to trace the party guilty of abandoning the child. It developed that shortly before the discovery of the child, a small roadster with some bedding tied on the outside had been seen to stop at the gate at the end of the Graff lane and turn back towards the highway. Following the publication of news dispatches in the papers, a gentleman came down from Sabinal and identified the child as one he had seen around that place for several days in charge of a man driving such a car. The car carried an Arizona license plate but the number was not known. A car suiting that description occupied by a man and a woman, and both cars carrying Arizona plates, had been observed on the highway headed east by Walter McLaugherty the same afternoon. The same outfit was traced to a restaurant in Castroville, where the men had stopped to take coffee, but could be followed no further. It looked like the guilty parties had made a complete get-away.

But the greatest surprise of all came about one o'clock Wednesday night when Mrs. Aurelia Padgett came to Hondo from San Antonio and claimed the child as her own. Mrs. Padgett was formerly a resident of this section, being a granddaughter of the late Jim Dabbs. Her maiden name was Casper and while still living here she married R. D. Padgett, a roving character who had been a soldier, and a child whom she claims is this boy was born to her here at Hondo before the family left here.

She claims that some nine months ago, while residing in Colorado, she drove her away from home and kept the boy. She made her way back to San Antonio where she has been living since. Seeing the newspaper accounts of the abandonment of the child she became suspicious that her husband might have taken such means to rid himself of the child, and while

TEACHER'S INSTITUTE TO CONTINUE IN SAN ANTONIO.

We have been favored with several Bulletins issued by the Southwest Texas Teachers Institute during its recent session in San Antonio and from which we have taken the following, dated Friday, September 11, 1931:

At the Business meeting held Thursday, W. N. Saathoff presiding, the Executive voted to continue the South West Texas Institute beginning the First Monday, September 1932.

Supt. J. C. Cochran was elected Conductor, C. A. Arnold Secretary-Treas. and Messrs. E. S. Saam, J. F. Johnson, Marshall Johnson, E. W. Kee, W. N. Saathoff, J. F. Saegert, and J. E. Swift were chosen for the Executive Committee.

There was the unanimous opinion that the Lectures had been well chosen for this year, and that the City Auditorium and adjacent auditoriums constituted the most desirable meeting places.

The Executive officers requested J. O. Loftin, C. A. Arnold and J. F. Swift to prepare and present resolutions of appreciation to the City Authorities and various people who have been so kind in permitting the use of the various meeting places.

Teachers are probably interested in learning that the total enrollment this session will be about twenty-five hundred.

THE LEGISLATIVE MILL

By Fred W. Davis.

September 10th.

Veritably the mills of the god grind exceedingly small. The legislature has met in extraordinary session to consider the question of acreage control by law. It is a new field of legislative action and the results, immediate and remote, are a matter of conjecture. That it transcends the whole idea of governmental province as we have believed and practiced heretofore cannot be gainsaid.

There are two phases of the object and right of such legislation as well as two dominant ideas as to the extent such legislation should go. One plan is to have no cotton planted next year and it is argued such a measure would hold good as a remedy to eradicate cotton pests and diseases. One year, however, might be proven to be inadequate and the law lose on this ground. Heretofore we have insisted it takes from three to five years to eradicate certain cotton pests. The other plan is to curtail, but not prohibit cotton entirely.

The character of the bill now taking the lead is a combination of the questions of economics and soil conservation. The economic side is the one that has practically the whole thought of the legislature this time. To do something that will have an immediate and beneficial market effect is the theme of all the proponents of such legislation. There is no hiding the fact that soil conservation is put in for the purpose of helping the proposed law to stand the test of the courts.

Counting time by the long stroke, soil conservation is one to challenge governmental attention. But now with more produced than the world is able, under present conditions to consume, and every nation threatening to expand its production, the thought of soil conservation is pushed into the background. Therefore, all discussion of this question may be properly confined to the economic soundness or unsoundness of the effort.

There are several bills now before the legislature, but as the governor's message stated, the prevailing legislative thought at present seems to be to enact a law allowing the planting of no more than 50 per cent of the present cotton acreage to cotton for one or possibly two years. If such a measure is passed it certainly could not qualify under the necessity of soil conservation.

If such legislation is passed the big question will be first, its chance to stand up in court and next its administration and probable economic benefits. If the law should fail to stand that would be the end of the effort and because of this I will pass the question of constitutionality.

If the law is enacted and stands up in court it should have some favorable effect upon the market within a short time. If no court test were made and the law should be generally obeyed by farmers it should favorably affect the market at least before the harvesting of another crop. To put it another way, such legislation obeyed should be of some benefit to cotton prices—how much no one knows and all definite predictions may be classed as pure propaganda.

The next question would be what effect would such action have upon other productive efforts and all industries depending upon a normal supply of cotton? If we had a dearth of production along some major lines—a void would be filled—the natural thing would be for productive energy to seek such fields. But there are no major lines of production any better off than cotton and no place in industry for idle people to find employment.

If a heavy curtailment is made will a part of the released energy heretofore used in producing and harvesting cotton go to small grains, livestock, poultry, dairying, etc.? If so will these bankrupted industries next year demand legislative aid? And once the field is entered with the ultimate contending forces forming blocs seeking legislative aid through political pressure will it eventually end in political chaos and a dictator?

It is argued the cotton farmers and still be the gainer. This may or could fold their hands for one year may not be true, strictly speaking, but if true the experiment would be extremely dangerous. We have enough idle people now to threaten our national existence.

Suggested probabilities as the outcome of such legislation as contemplated could be enumerated almost without number. The confusion and lack of harmony among different states, counties, communities and individuals in its administration could lead to confusion almost without end. Louisiana has passed a law allowing no cotton and the governor of that state who is empowered to not put the law into effect unless the other cotton states pass similar legislation insists that nothing short of cotton prohibition will do any good. If Texas passes a reduction law will the Louisiana Governor turn that state loose to plant as they please? The increased acreage in foreign countries should our curtailment help prices, is a serious question, both as to lint and oil, for all nations are suffering depression and frantically seeking relief.

I would not discourage legislative effort if it can be given without danger to the future. The best portion of my life has been spent in endeavoring to help farm conditions. Therefore, this article is not to be effort to cause legislators and others construed in any other light than an to think seriously and hard before they attempt the unusual. If a real conservation law is passed it would not be weakened if it should also redound to the economic benefit of the producers. But such a rule of action would have to be permanent and not contingent upon other states. The several cotton states could cooperate in passing conservation acts, legislatively sound, which might improve our present practices. But better markets would be incident to and not the primary purpose of such acts.

There is one thing government can do for the farmers which would strike right at the root of much of the evil. The government can eliminate those who own no farm products, never did own any and never contemplated owning any, yet sell fictitiously such products in competition to the growers and legitimate buyers. This would certainly be a safe round upon which to legislate. If cotton enjoyed a legitimate stable market the United States could be a strong and usually a dominating factor in determining its value at all times.

We should think, and then think some more. Unwise laws of this magnitude would only add to our rapidly increasing disrespect for law.

TEACHERS HONORED.

A delightful courtesy was extended the school teachers of the Baptist church Friday night when the T. E. L. Class entertained with a lawn party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Cureton.

Rev. R. W. Merrill welcomed the teachers back to Hondo with a short talk to which each teacher responded.

After games of 42 were played, dainty refreshments of ice cream and cake, carrying out the class colors of green and white, were served to the following guests:

Rev. and Mrs. R. W. Merrill, Mr. and Mrs. Sid Carter, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. I. Bedell, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Windrow, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Beal, Dr. and Mrs. T. B. Knopp, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Earnest, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Gaines, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Dillon, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kollman, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Cureton and Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Crow, Mesdames R. W. Speece, F. L. McWilliams, W. C. Scott and Elsie Worden, Misses Ellen Tweedy, Minnie Margaret Howard, Esther Saathoff, Margaret Dillon and Fannie Carle, Messrs. M. L. McDowell, Glenn Fluker, Preston Gaines, Bennie Bradley, Don Windrow, Dr. B. H. Carlton and Rogers Whaley.

Miss Maxine Jones left Thursday for Austin where she entered Texas University for her Senior year of work.

P. T. A. RECEPTION.

The Parent-Teacher Association held its first meeting of the school year in the school auditorium at 4 P. M. Monday, September 14. This was as usual, a reception for the teachers. The officers and permanent chairmen of committees served as hosts.

A plan for a course of study was presented for the consideration of the Association, and it will be decided upon at the next meeting.

A motion was made and carried that the organization have a birthday box as a means of increasing the funds. Each member is to bring an offering to the first meeting she attends after her birthday.

The P. T. A. will sponsor a float for the primary grades in the Fair parade as they did last year.

Interesting short talks were given by each past president who attended the meeting.

Miss Elizabeth Wilson played a piano solo, "Rustle of Spring" by Christian Sinding, which was greatly enjoyed.

After the program delicious refreshments of punch and lady fingers were served.

The P. T. A. is now selling pencils at the school house and at the residences of Mrs. Joe Dillon and Mrs. W. T. McLaugherty. Each purchase will be appreciated.

We will handle your needs for rubber stamps. Phone 127.

FOUND!

Cut used by Courtesy of San Antonio Daily Light.

Unable to tell his name, but otherwise speaking good English, this boy about two and a half years old was found crying in lane near Hondo nearly exhausted from undernourishment. He is being cared for by Mrs. O. Haralson under orders from Sheriff C. J. Schuehle.

thinking over means of finding out the truth ran unexpectedly across her husband on the streets of San Antonio. When pressed for an answer as to what he had done with their child, he told her he had left him with Mrs. Haralson in Hondo.

The child can talk but can give no account of himself. He is still in the custody of the sheriff and will be cared for by Mrs. Haralson until all legal tangles are straightened out. In the meantime, renewed efforts are being made to apprehend the man who deserted him.

OFFERS STOCK FOR SALE.

While the United Gas Public Service Company is a comparatively new organization, it has already spent over $20,000,000 for additions and improvements. Within a few weeks a public offering of the Preferred Stock of the Company will be made. The United Gas Public Service Company contemplates further large extensions to its system which now serves more than two hundred communities with natural gas.

Generally when large companies wish to do any financing, the issue of stock or bonds is sold to some banking house in one of the country's financial centers. The banking house in turn sells the securities to its customers who are scattered all over the United States and in many instances, all over the world.

The sale of United Gas Public Service Company's Preferred Stock could easily be handled in this manner, as securities such as this Preferred Stock are in great demand. But the company has decided to go about it differently.

After a thorough study, the management of the company has decided to adopt the "Customer-Ownership" plan and expects to offer Preferred Stock to residents of the territory served. Thus the money the company will pay out as Preferred Stock dividends will be distributed locally.

The employees of the company are to sell the stock and the shares will not be scattered all over the country, but will be placed right here at home with customers of the company, and other local people. They support the company and they are the ones who should share in its success; and they will do so by receiving dividends from the company every three months.

The United Gas Public Service Company owns directly or through subsidiaries all or substantially all of the common stocks, practically all of the preferred stocks, and in most cases a large percentage of the bonds and debentures of the following natural gas producing, transporting and distribution companies: United Production Corporation, Houston Gas and Fuel Company, Southern Gas Company, Southern Gas Utilities, Inc., South Texas Gas Company, South Texas Production Company, Texas Border Gas Company, Compania Mexicana de Gas S. A., North Texas Utilities Company, Southern Gas and Fuel Company and Dixie Gulf Gas Company.

SHARES SURPLUS WITH FARMERS.

Kansas City, Mo., June 10—Between $500,000 and one million dollars was made available to help farmers carry their surplus crops on the farm in the decision of the board of directors of Butler Manufacturing Company to permit farmers to pay for steel grain storage bins on easy terms of from five months to a full year.

The Butler Company, with factories at Kansas City and Minneapolis, is reputed to be the largest manufacturer of ready-made steel grain bins for the storage and conditioning of grain on farms. For more than a score of years the company's factories have annually supplied millions of bushels of storage capacity.

Farmers of both the winter and spring wheat belts. This is the first year, however, a steel bin manufacturer has generally offered any but regular trade terms.

Under the "farmers' first aid" plan completed today, more than half of the company's steel bin production scheduled for this year will be allotted to farmers with big crops but without the ready cash to provide the proper facilities for carrying at least a part of their crops into a more promising market period than that which prevails during harvest. Such farmers will be given from five months to a full year in which to pay for their storage facilities. Farmers First Aid credit will be extended in this district by the Hondo Lumber Company.

Statisticians of Butler Manufacturing Company each year make comprehensive studies of crop conditions and farm community prices, and announcement of the new policy indicates the belief of Butler executives that the farming industry will move forward regardless of present low prices for farm products.

"Without confidence in the future, we could not afford to make this offer to the farmers," said an official of the company. "We found farmers had drawn upon their credit and operating capital to the limit in the new economic situation, yet they faced further losses without the savings which can be made with efficient grain storage. The farmer who must sell at once will be handicapped by threatened embargoes and sagging prices. Our farmers should not be forced to make this sacrifice, but should have the opportunity of waiting for the higher prices which may come as the result of threatening crop conditions in other wheat producing nations.

"This is the rainy day for which surpluses were accumulated. This is the time to use them. We have had our surplus invested in steel. We now prefer to have it invested in the farming industry. A small advance in the price of grain will in one year pay for farm storage facilities which will last the farmers for from twenty to thirty years."

Chevrolet connecting rods are matched in sets of six to within one-quarter ounce, and are individually fitted by hand to the crankshaft. Bearings are of Babbitt metal cast into the rods under heavy air pressure and at 800 degrees Fahrenheit.

Possessing the basic goodness of sound design and fine manufacture

CHEVROLET From the selection of raw materials to the completion of the finished Chevrolet product, each process of building, assembling and checking the Chevrolet Six is marked by extreme care and precision. An exhaustive system of test and inspection makes certain that every part meets specified dimensions exactly. Many of these parts are held to limits of one ten-thousandth of an inch. No manufacturer in the industry uses more care or precision in building and testing than Chevrolet.

Just as every part of the car is soundly built, every feature is soundly designed.

In planning the motor, Chevrolet engineers were not content to offer the public anything less than tried and proved design. They knew that the only satisfactory way to get smooth, flexible power in a car is to use at least six cylinders. So they adopted the six-cylinder engine without compromise. And this is what you get in today's Chevrolet Six.

As a result of this sound designing and sound manufacturing, you can buy a Chevrolet and know you are getting a genuinely good automobile—soundly designed, soundly built, basically and technically right.

Twenty beautiful models, at prices ranging from $475 to $675

RUEMPEL-SCHUCHART.

A beautiful wedding was solemnized in Sacred Heart Church on Wednesday morning, September 9, at 8 o'clock, when Miss Helen Ruempel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ruempel, Bandera Road, and Archie Jerome Schuchart, son of Mrs. C. Schuchart, of Cliff, Texas, were united in marriage. The pastor, the Rev. Joseph Jacobi, officiated at the wedding and was also the celebrant of the Nuptial High Mass. The Rev. Frank Lorenz, C. S. R., of St. Gerard's Church, by whom the bridegroom was recently received into the Church, and the Rev. T. Janysek, of Sacred Heart Church, were likewise present in the sanctuary. During the Mass, Mr. Schuchart received First Communion.

The bridal attendants were Miss Lena Ruempel, sister of the bride, maid of honor; Mrs. Nora Winters, likewise a sister, matron of honor;

Restless CHILDREN

CHILDREN will fret, often for no apparent reason. But there's always a cause! As harmless as the recipe on the wrapper, mild and bland as it tastes. But its gentle action soothes a youngster more surely than a more powerful medicine.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given the tiniest infant—as often as there is need. In cases of colic, diarrhea or similar disturbance, it is invaluable. A coated tongue calls for just a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset—this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed.

Fletcher's CASTORIA

NOT APPENDICITIS--- GAS PAINS FOOL HIM

"I had such pain in my right side I thought I had appendicitis. But it was only gas. After taking Adlerika I had no trouble."—W. L. Adams. You can't get rid of gas doctoring your stomach. For gas stays in the UPPER bowel. Adlerika reaches the upper and lower bowel, washing out poisons which cause gas, nervousness, bad sleep. Get Adlerika today; tomorrow you feel the wonderful effect of this German doctor's remedy.—W. H. WINDROW, Druggist.

ENTERTAINS LEGIONNAIRES.

Miss Doris Haegelin, of Rio Medina, bridesmaid; Alvin Hartman, best man; Norman Steubing, groomsmen; little Pat Edward Green, a nephew of the bridegroom, ringbearer.

Following the ceremony, wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Conrad Ehrler, 2518 Monterey Street, after which Mr. and Mrs. Schuchart left on a bridal trip to Denver, Colorado, and other places of interest.

After October 1 they will be at home on Mr. Schuchart's ranch at Cliff.—Southern Messenger.

Detroit, Michigan, Sept. 20—Fifty three ivory-white automobiles, all trimmed in red, blue and gold and manned by an army of drivers dressed in uniforms identically alike, this morning were placed at the disposal of state commanders here attending the national convention of the American Legion.

The cars represent part of many extraordinary provisions made for the comfort and convenience of Legionnaires during their annual convalescence.

and are one of several contributions of the Chevrolet Motor Company to further the success of the convention.

The cars—special sedans—carry the Legion seal in gold on the driver's door, and lettering designating the state or territory of the commander to which each car is assigned. Cars will serve the commanders from early morning until midnight every day of the convention, and are available constantly for use anywhere in the county in which Detroit is located. Covers for the spare tires, carried in forward fender wells, reveal a motif worked out in red, white and blue, and the drivers, in naval uniforms, also carry the national colors in their dress.

In addition to supplying cars for State commanders, the Chevrolet company is loaning its trail-blazing automobile, which two years ago completed the first land trip ever made from Buenos Aires to the United States, to the "40 & 80" parade, and is supplying every Legionnaire who registers for the convention with a bronze medal commemorative of his visit to the city.

ST. PAUL'S LUTHERAN CHURCH.

This church will have morning worship next Sunday beginning at 10:30. Do you know that there is a lot of Unfinished Business in the Christian Church? Do you know that a Christian has part in the Biggest Business in the world? Do you know how much a Christian is expected to do to finish this work and what is the Reward? These questions will be answered in the morning sermon, whose topic is: "Not Slothful in Business."

The Sunday school meets at 9:15. The Life Story of David is being studied at present.

There will be night service at 8 o'clock. The sermon subject will be: "How God Looks Upon our Affiliations." Another of our favorite hymns will be discussed. A large attendance was present last Sunday night. A hearty invitation is here-with extended to all members and friends. "I was glad when they said unto me: Let us go into the House of the Lord."

The choir is rehearsing a special number for Mission Rally. Regular practice is held every Wednesday night at 8 o'clock.

The Sunday school teachers meet Friday night this week at the church at 8 o'clock. The second tonic under training course will be given, namely "The Books of the Bible." Teachers are requested to bring their Bibles with them. Business matters pertaining to the management of the Sunday school will be considered.

NEW FOUNTAIN W. M. S.

The regular monthly meeting of the New Fountain Missionary Society took place in the home of Mrs. G. Wiemers, Friday afternoon.

The Devotional opened by singing "The Way of the Cross Leads Home" and a prayer by Mrs. Theo. Wiemers. The Devotional topic, "Simple Orde- ed Lives of Accomplishment," was given by Mrs. Theo. J. Wiemers and a poem by Mrs. E. W. Dechert. The Missionary topic, "Our Congo Field" was discussed by Mrs. Frank Wi- nink and Mrs. D. W. Wiemers, and "The Bulletin News" by Mrs. E. W. Dechert.

During the business session we decided to conduct a book study "Challenge of Changes in the Future." A pleasant social hour followed, during which the hostess served a delicious repast to eight mem- bers and three guests.

On September 3rd the Zone Meet- ing of the Uvalde District met at Yancey. A special attendance from the different auxiliaries from Uvalde, Sabinal, Hondo, Utopia and New Fountain were present and an in- teresting program was rendered.

The Yancey ladies served a deli- cious chicken dinner. They proved to be delightful hosts and the meet- ing was pronounced a success in every particular.

Our next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Theo. J. Wiemers, October 2nd.

This editor was favored with a fraternal call from Editor J. Marn Hunter of Bandera Tuesday while he was here to address the members of the local Lions Club. Besides being the editor of a wide-awake coun- seat weekly, the Bandera News and a most unique magazine, Fron- tier Times, Mr. Hunter finds time to write and publish numerous books. While here he presented the edi- tor with two of these one being a re- print of Sowell's Life of Big Foot Wal- les and the other a collection of sto- ries of Indian raids which he groups under the title of "The Bloody Trail of Texas". These are true incident and for that reason more thrill- ing than any romance ever written. If you want to inspect these books from a view to purchasing copies from the publisher we will be glad to show you our copies. But by the way, this Methodist(?) is missing from his accustomed haunts when you call to see the books just look for him at Bandera, Brother Hunter promised to turn us loose as long as we want to ramble through his museum and feast us on a chicken dinner any time we visit his burg. Where's my hat!

You write letters occasionally. Why not use printed stationery? We will furnish you a box of 200 note sheets and 100 envelopes, all ready printed with your name and address for only $1.00. You can't beat a Call and let us fix you up, or mail us a dollar bill and we will mail them to you post paid anywhere within the radius of this paper's cir- culation. Address The Fletche Davis' Print Shop, Hondo, Texas.

Gin Statistician John P. Lippold reports only 218 bales of the 1931 cotton crop ginned up to September 1st. Up to a like date last year 1,694 bales had been ginned. The crop was early last year but is late this year. The crop was practically gathered by this time last year; the year picking is just now fairly under way.

Dr. H. J. Meyer is equipping the room over the Red & White Store for offices for himself and for his son, Dr. John H. Meyer, dentist, who recently graduated from the Baylor College of Dentistry. When com- pleted it will be a combined office that for convenience and modern equipment would do credit to any city.

Since last report there have been shipped from Hondo 18 cars of cot- ton four of which were consigned to Nashville, Tennessee. The price for corn remains low and the market is still draggy and uncertain, but even at that the sale of the grain is bring- ing in considerable money and help- ing business.

Cotton shipments up to Thursday of this week from Hondo were 581 bales; up to a like date last year 1199 bales had been shipped. This dispari- ty is due to the lateness of this year's crop and not to its shortness. The per-acre yield promises to be considerably better than last year.

BADGERS HOLD MEETING.

Fluker Presides at Session with Much Accomplished in Business Line.

With Manager Glenn Fluker presiding the Hondo Baptist Badgers held a business meeting Monday night at the home of Roy Schweers. Along with regular lettermen attending the meeting was captain Carter Snooks of San Antonio. This is the first meeting of the new year that the team's manager was present.

Plans for financing the work of the association throughout the coming year were formulated and discussed in detail. The Badgers cannot help but look forward to a successful year, although at present the bank account is at naught.

Bradley Bailey and Jack Mask, veterans of many a Badger enterprise and undertaking, were appointed a committee to plan and work out details of a concession stand at the County Fair.

Practice and actual play will not start until after the arrival of cooler weather. The team has already received requests for games, but as the Badgers have no definite playing day no actual dates have been given for games.

THURSDAY BRIDGE CLUB.

Mrs. Earl Starnes was hostess to the Thursday Bridge Club and several additional guests with a charming party, Thursday afternoon of last week. A lovely arrangement of bright colored zinnias was used in the living room.

Mrs. R. J. Noonan received a strand of crystal beads for high score and Mrs. T. B. Knopp was presented a flower basket for low. Guest prize of a luncheon cloth was won by Mrs. Volney Boon.

The hostess served delicious banana ice cream, "Food for the Gods" and Egyptian cake.

Those present were Mesdames O. H. Miller, R. J. Noonan, Horace Bradley, L. E. Heath, J. M. Finger, Jack Lacy, Volney Boon, L. J. Brucks, O. B. Taylor, T. B. Knopp, Melliff Lippold and H. J. Meyer.

THE LIONS HAVE DISTINGUISHED GUEST.

The local Lions Club had as the club's honor guest at its Tuesday luncheon Mr. J. Marvin Hunter, Editor and Publisher of the Bandera New Era and the Frontier Times magazine. Mr. Hunter, as well as being a successful editor and newspaper publisher, is an authority on Southwest Texas history.

He favored the Lions with a brief sketch of the life of that unique border character, Big Foot Wallace, known to every one of the older generation in this part of the country, and about whose exploits and deeds of daring several books have been written.

We regret that we haven't a copy of the address for publication.

A. & M. STUDENTS HONORED.

On Saturday night Sept. 9, Misses Gladys Fusselman, Margaret Dillon and Thelma Wilson entertained with a buncos party at the home of the latter honoring Messrs. George Isaac Wilson, Lawrence Rothe, Albert Haegelin and Don Windrow who are leaving soon for A. & M. College.

After twenty games of buncos, refreshments consisting of fruit punch and devils food cake were served to about 35 guests.

IT WON'T BE LONG.

There is certainly going to be a flock of the prettiest floats we've seen for some time, in the parade which opens the Medina County Fair, to be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday, October 2, 3 and 4th at Hondo. The parade is to begin at 10 A. M., the opening day.

There will be a dance every night with the very best dance orchestra to be had furnishing the music.

Judge H. E. Haass and daughter, Miss Irene, were business visitors in Devine Wednesday, where the Judge was called for a special session of Justice of Peace Court.

Misses Lucille Boon and Ina Hollaway were visitors in San Antonio Wednesday. Miss Boon is preparing to depart soon for Denton to enter Texas Women's College.

Miss Regina Nester left Tuesday for San Antonio where she entered Incarnate Word College. She was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. W. J. Nester, and daughters, Willie Jean and Mrs. Henry Windrow.

Eugene Beatty, Representative of the American National Red Cross, was here the first of the week on business for that organization. Prof. W. N. Saathoff has been appointed Chairman of the County Roll Call in November.

Miss Ruth Fly returned to Crystal City after an all-summer stay with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Fly, and is again a member of the faculty of the Crystal City High School of which her brother, Sterling Fly, is Superintendent.

The High School Glee Club and the Hondo Orchestra motored to Sabinal Tuesday night where they presented for the second time a delightful musical program. The performance was a repetition of that given under the auspices of the Lion's Club last week in the high school auditorium. Direction was under Mr. Ed. Armstrong.

Our office was favored with a delightful visit from Miss Ernestine Morgan and Miss Mansfield, who, as representatives of a big book concern, were returning from the Davis Mountains and stopped over on their way to Beaumont, where they will spend the winter. We were very glad to renew acquaintance with Miss Morgan which was started at the Short Course at A. & M. College last year.

From The Humble Sales Lubricator of September 1931, house organ of the Humble Oil & Refining Company of Houston, we quote the following item of local interest:

The big $200 Oil Sales Contest which ran during June and July has come to a successful conclusion. Five prizes of $40 each were offered for various oil sales records.

Highest Oil Ratio

Two prizes were offered for the best service station oil to gasoline ratio. One for the company-owned stations, the other for C. R. accounts.

The other prize goes to company-owned Station No. 102, combination at Hondo. Salesman R. A. Carter and crew had a higher motor oil ratio than any other company-owned station in the territory.

Mr. Carter is being congratulated on his success in winning so valuable a prize where there was so much competition.

Plowing in late fall or winter is probably the most important control measure for combating the cotton bollworm, as this pest overwinters in the pupal stage from 4 to 6 inches below the surface of the ground. This is especially important for land that has been in crops harboring the bollworm during the late fall. It is also desirable to plow or deeply disk fence rows and other places where bollworms may have fed on plants.

HARVESTING AND MARKETING OF COTTON.

By L. A. Hawkins,
Agricultural Extension Department,
International Harvester Company.

We should start picking our cotton just as soon as enough bolls are open to pay for going over the field. This will probably be two or three weeks after the first bolls begin to open. The first light frosts are a distinct advantage for the plant growth is stopped, the leaves begin to fall and the bolls are exposed to the sun light, so that they open quite rapidly.

Two or three pickings a season will usually be sufficient to get all the crop. The reason for going over the field two or three times is to conserve the quality and yield. When the bolls have been open for some time not only a part of the lint is blown away by the wind, but trash and dirt are also blown into what is left, which reduces the quality. Cases are on record where the pickings were delayed by rain and other adverse weather conditions and the cotton picked after the delay ginned out five to 10 percent less than that picked early in the season from the same field. A continued exposure to rains and dew also stains the cotton and causes it to lose much of its oil which makes it weigh much less and reduces the quality and strength of staple. Such cotton is ordinarily cut heavily in price.

We should be careful to remove all the lint from each boll when picking and see that no dirt, leaves or trash are gathered. The amount gathered, each day by each person depends upon a great many things, but probably an average is about 150 to 200 pounds for each picker daily.

After picking, cotton is ready to be ginned and baled. Unless it is hauled direct from the field to the gin, it should be placed under shelter until it is taken to the gin. The important things in ginning are: to see that the cotton is as clean as possible; to gin it only when it is dry because dampness weakens the fibres and otherwise lowers its salable qualities; and to make a square tight, strongly tied and well wrapped bale. A poorly packed bale will become ragged by repeated handlings and will consequently pick up dirt and other trash until the cotton again loses grade. If baled cotton is not to be sold immediately it should be stored to prevent deterioration.

There are nine official grades of cotton and its final price and amount of profit to the grower is dependent upon its grade. The grade is determined by the quantity of dirt and trash it contains, by the amount of cut seed in it and by the color, strength, and uniformity in length of fiber.

Thus it is seen that any one or a number of things may reduce the final profits from the crop, most of which are in control of the grower. Among them may be mentioned lack of care in picking, improper storage before ginning, ginning when wet and failure to see that the cotton is properly baled. Marketing immediately after harvesting either because of lack of funds or storage facilities, as so many growers often do, often swamps the market and keeps the price reduced until a good share of the crop has been sold. Arrange to hold the crop for better prices if possible, and finally use only good seed, grow as nearly as possible only one variety in the same community, rotate crops and use the best planting and cultural methods.

Herold—Gosh that's nothing! My whole family objects to you!—The Pathfinder.

HARVESTING SEED CORN.

By P. G. Holden,
Field Director, Agricultural Extension Department,
International Harvester Company.

Every ear of corn intended for planting should be harvested before the severe fall freezes and stored where it will dry out and keep dry. In Iowa and the northern half of Illinois this work should be done during the last 10 days in September or the first four or five days of October. Frozen seed corn costs the country millions of dollars every year.

Many farmers are careful to harvest and store their seed corn at the proper time and in the proper manner, but the majority of us depend for seed upon the occasional good ears found during the husking season or we select our seed from the crib in the spring.

This results in poor seed corn, and poor seed corn means a poor stand, missing hills, weak stalks, producing little or nothing. It means less than 30 bushels per acre instead of 60. It means that we produce an average of one small ear to each hill instead of two or three. It means wasted land and wasted labor—and we cannot afford to waste either.

Six bushels of seed will plant about 43 acres of corn, if there is no waste and no replanting is necessary. But it is best to save 15 or 20 bushels for each 40 acres. This will provide for all ordinary emergencies and will enable us to plant only the best and strongest ears.

One of the best methods of gathering seed corn is to go into the best field with bags or baskets and select well matured ears from the most vigorous stalks.

We should consider the stalk in selecting seed corn. It requires large, thrifty stalks to produce good, big ears. Do not take an ear from a stalk that grew in a hill by itself or from one in a hill with a barren or weak stalk. Choose ears of medium height. The highest ears will produce late corn; the lowest ears will produce early corn with shallow kernels and wide furrows between the rows.

Pick ears that droop over so that their tips are turned downward. They shed water better and are drier than ears standing upright. The shank should be short, as ears with long shanks are hard to husk and are often damaged.

The husks should be long enough to cover the tips of the ear, but not extend far beyond. If the tip of the ear is bare, the ear is likely to be damaged by insects or disease. Husks extending far beyond the tip of the ear cannot dry out well and are hard to husk.

There should be a medium growth of broad, thrifty leaves, distributed evenly over the stalks and the plant should be free from all forms of disease such as smut, rust, etc. and should also be free from suckers.

As soon as the corn is picked, it should be husked and placed so that air can circulate freely around every ear. Never put it in a pile on the floor, even over night.

A rack can be made or purchased which will provide proper conditions for storing seed corn, but one of the best methods is to tie it up with binding twine. The strings, containing 12 or 15 ears each, can be suspended from horizontal wires or from nails driven in rafters.

This method of storing gives better protection from mice and better circulation of air than when the corn is spread on the floor or corded in piles.

The attic of some upstairs room where the windows can be opened to give circulation of air during October and November, is the best place to hang seed corn. A space 3 by 8 feet will hold 200 strings of seed—enough to plant 200 acres. Hang the strings in rows, four inches apart, each way.

Hints for the Household

Address all

Letters to

The Editor.

Hello, Fellow Members of the Household! Have you sent your favorite recipe or other suggestions to "our" page yet? Don't fail me this month, for remember that husband, brother or sweetheart has to be shown that your favorite dishes and tried and trusted household friends can be made to go beyond the kingdom of your own household and made to enlighten some other lady in the pleasure of her work. On this very page you will find three recipes of two of Farming's friends that have probably been cherished in each family cook book for years and years, and these two generous friends wish to divulge their secrets of household happiness and let you share them. Won't you send in your suggestion now so that they too can profit by your favorites also? Then with the tie of mutual likings we will all be truly united for the Kingdom of the Household. Let's Go!

Like the warmth of a welcoming hearth were the letters sent to me, wishing success and happiness to our page, and especially cheering were the letters from Mrs. Vida B. Butcher from far off Oconomowoc, Wisconsin, and from Mrs. Louise Dillon, almost as far away in Colchester, Illinois, and to these kind friends of the Household Page goes one year's subscription to FARMING with our sincerest thanks and compliments. Too, we have been graciously surprised and pleased by the discovery of our page by none other than Mr. Fred B. Robinson, veteran editor of Waco, Texas, and with such encouragement from one only indirectly reached by these columns—Ladies of Farming's Household Page, we must get up and hustle.

Thanks to all for the letters and Editor Robinson for the recognition of our first efforts—but wait and see, and acclaim our later achievements. They will be worth talking about.

TOMATO RELISH.

16 large ripe tomatoes
8 large sweet peppers
8 large onions
All ground through the food chopper.
One pint vinegar
Two cups sugar
One table spoon salt
Seal in glass cans while boiling hot.

—Mrs. Louise Dillon.

ESCALLOPED TOMATOES.

1 pt. can tomatoes
1 can of fine bread crumbs
1 tablespoon grated onion
1 tablespoon finely minced celery
1-2 teaspoon salt
1-2 cup sugar
1-8 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons melted butter
Mix all ingredients well. Turn in to casserole, cover and bake 30 minutes in a 350 degree oven.

(5 medium sized tomatoes, cut into-eighths with 7-8 cup of water may be used instead of the canned.)

—By Mrs. Vida B. Butcher.

CRUMB CAKE.

2 cups brown sugar
1 cup butter and lard, mixed
2 cups bread flour
1 teaspoon cinnamon
Mix above ingredients, as for pie crust fine and crumbly. Reserve 1 cup of this mixture for the top of cake. To the remainder add:

1 cup sour milk
1 teaspoon soda
1 cup raisins, if desired, though not necessary

Turn into an oiled and floured shallow pan, sprinkle the 1 cup of crumb mixture over the top, and bake in a moderate oven about 30 minutes.

This is a very delicious cake and will keep moist for some time.

—By Mrs. Vida B. Butcher.

PRESERVING VEGETABLES.

By Betty Barclay.

Your preserve closet is not complete with jars of fruit and bottles of pickles. Vegetables should be remembered also. They help to furnish roughage for the winter, while the sugar they contain is an excellent fuel for the cold days to come.

Carrot Marmalade.

12 raw carrots
4 cups sugar
3 lemons
1 teaspoon ground cloves
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground allspice

Grate carrots, add sugar and let stand one hour. Add lemon juice and spices. Cook slowly for 1 hour. Turn into sterilized jars and seal when cold.

Pumpkin Preserves.

Remove the rind and seeds from a small pumpkin and cut the flesh in inch cubes. Cook in a small amount of water until tender. Drain and weigh. For each pound of pumpkin allow 1 pound of sugar, 2 lemons and 2 ounces of ginger root. Slice the lemon and cook with the pumpkin over night in cold water. Next morning cook in same water until the lemon rind is tender. Add the sugar and the pumpkin and simmer until the pumpkin is transparent. Drain and pack in jars. Cook again until it is thick and pour over the fruit in the jars. Seal tightly.

POINTERS FOR A PICNIC.

By Juliette Frazier.

On hot summer days when the cool breezes of the seashore and lakeside call us away from our regular routine, if we are fortunate enough to own an automobile we should by all means try to systemize our work in such a way as to be able to answer the summons. If only for a day, or even a few hours. A few hours of recreation, and a change of scenery will more than repay us in rest and health, and we will be better fitted to take up the work where we left off.

If there be a baby among the members of the party, it is a good idea to take a light weight hammock along. The hammock can be stretched in the shade and shelter of some trees, and when baby wants to take a nap, it will afford a much cooler and more comfortable place for him than if he were put to sleep upon the seat of the car. A piece of rope stretched about two feet directly above the hammock and a large piece of white mosquito netting thrown over it, tent-fashion, will protect the baby from being molested by flies or insects.

Elderly folk will enjoy the outing much more if they are provided with a comfortable camp chair to be used when they reach the end of the journey. Elderly people who are more or less afflicted with rheumatism are often subjected to unnecessary discomfort by being obliged to sit upon the ground.

Those who do not own a regular automobile kit, will find that an ordinary, inexpensive straw suit-case will answer the purpose very well. The knives, forks, spoons, cups, the salt cellar and pepper shaker can be bought at the ten-cent store; any flat tin box may be used for the sand-

TEXAS AND TEXANS.

By
Will H. Mayes
"All Texans for All Texas"

Don't Get Excited.

Don't expect too much of the Government, National or State. Better still, don't expect anything of it. All agree that cotton prices are too low, just as wheat, oats, corn, livestock and other products are too low, and everyone has his own ideas about how to improve conditions. Don't get mad at the other fellow and call him ugly names, if he doesn't agree with your plans. He may be right, after all, and you may be wrong. Time alone will reveal what is best, and in the meantime there will likely be some costly experiments. The man who keeps a good temper toward everybody, works hard, conserves his resources and depends on himself rather than legislation is going to win out. The Government can't force a world without money to buy products at prices it can't pay, and especially when the world has so much of the same products that they can't be consumed. Keep cool.

Chasing Rainbows in Business.

We are inclined to over-stress whatever we may be doing until we "run it into the ground," then take up something else with equal fervor until it meets a like fate, jumping from one thing to another and quiting each at inopportune times. It is easy to imagine a fortune quickly made in whatever activity or fad may be attracting temporary attention. The prosperous appearance of corner filling stations has caused hundreds to drop some other business, lease lots, erect stations and expect every passing autoist to become a profitable customer. Well lighted and decorative midget golf courses last year tempted other hundreds to invest in a fad that did not last through the season. The click of the turnstile in chain groceries has started a mania for "chain business" of every kind—chain stores, newspapers, banks, shine parlors, cleaning shops, cafes, beauty parlors—the public imagining, apparently, that a business that is losing money can be made to pay if only it can get into some kind of a chain system. There are so many cars whizzing around that it seems easy to make plenty of money selling cars or accessories of any kind. If we meet a few heavily loaded trucks on a highway we concluded that a truck can make any one rich. A flock of white chickens in a green field makes most of us want a chicken farm. It is easy to figure a fortune in dairying after looking at a herd of Jerseys, or to become fabulously rich when seeing a flock of sheep or goats or cattle caring for themselves in a pasture. Everything looks better than the particular thing we are doing. Almost anything would beat this monotonous typewriting I am doing just now. The other fellow's business always looks better than ours, if we don't look at it too closely, but business statistics show that the fellow who sticks to an apparently poor vocation does better than the one who is ever ready to try something else.

Farmers Doing Well.

Most farmers are better off than they know, although it is admitted that farm conditions have been better. They are better off because they have enough food products on which to live until more can be made. The poor fellow without food and without a job with which to provide food is the one who is suffering. Fortunately there is less unemployment in Texas than in most other sections. In South and Southeast Texas 20,000 more cotton pickers are needed than can be obtained and farm laborers are in demand. It is true that there is not much money in picking cotton at 50 cents a hundred, but with houses, wood and water furnished at least a plain living may be made, with prospect of work until the first of the year. There is an abundance of work and plenty of food in Texas, the only grave problem being their distribution so that all may share.

Rich in Products.

Whatever prices may be, Texas is rich in products. The corn crop will be 5,000,000 bushels in excess of that of last year; rice production will be 400,000 bushels greater; sweet potatoes 1,000,000 more; cotton yield is 41 pounds greater per acre; pecan crop 25 per cent larger; wool 4,000,000 pounds more; wheat, oats, rye, barley feedstuffs all are much larger. Banks have more and larger savings accounts. Business failures are fewer. Oil and gas production are almost beyond estimating. Demand for building materials is growing. The legislature is in session. What more could be expected, except higher prices for everything? Many expect the legislature to turn the trick.

Chain Stores and Farms.

Chain store systems are denying the recent report that they will go into chain farming, stating that they have troubles enough already. Even fancy turnstiles and cash and carry systems would not make farming attractive to owners of chain stores.

Seguin Prospers.

A correspondent writes that Seguin, the beautiful city on the Guadalupe river, is doing things worth noticing. Twenty blocks of new paving are being completed; the water system is being improved by a new and larger standpipe; water mains are being extended to all parts of the city; an electric-lighted fountain is to be placed in the center of the city park; new residences are being built. Here are a few of the reasons: Diversification of farm crops until low cotton prices don't hurt much; "The county has a splendid group of dairies, 28 of which are 'Grade A', which sell whole milk and cream to the local creamery. Practically every farm has a good number of hogs, chickens, turkeys, a good garden, fruit and above all a well filled pantry of food, such as fruit, vegetables and meats for winter consumption."

Buying Conventions.

Recently the practice of paying officials of organization to hold conventions in certain places has grown into what closely approaches organization graft. The plan is to get the places that want a convention to make private bids to the convention officials in exchange for their support, the city making the most favorable bid winning the convention. The members of the organization are seldom aware of the bids made, but influential officials are able to swing the votes pretty much as they please. As an additional favor the officials are often provided with a fine suite during the convention period. San Antonio, which in the past has paid as high as $100,000 for a convention, has taken a positive stand against this form of graft, and while still inviting conventions, is refusing to buy them. Every city and town in Texas should follow San Antonio's example.

School Building Fete.

San Benito has a right to be proud of its $320,000 school-building program just being completed, consisting of a high school building, cafeteria-gymnasium, science building and ward schools, and is going to show that pride with a "community open house observance," to which all the country around has been invited. A town with good school buildings has an asset that it can never lose.

Coleman Growing.

The new postoffice building, road construction, residence building, cotton picking and ginning are keeping down unemployment in Coleman and in the county. Farmers are reported in better condition than a year ago despite low prices of practically all products.

Floresville Fair.

In deciding not to have a fair at Floresville this year, the directors announced that the suspension is only temporary and that preparations will begin at once for a fair in 1932. It is this kind of public spirit that makes Floresville one of the best towns in Texas.

Leonard Tillotson.

When Leonard Tillotson of Sealy recently passed to his reward Texas lost one of its most useful and most patriotic citizens. This writer knew him intimately in public life since the legislative sessions of 1914 and knows that he always placed public interest first in his work and that he was never prompted by any spirit of selfishness in the public service to which he devoted so great a part of his life.

Texas Promoted.

Texas editors and many newspaper readers will be interested in the announcement that Lewis A. Yantis, son of Col. R. E. Yantis, many years editor of the Athens Review, won the highest grade in a Nation-wide contest, for which he was rewarded by being made bandmaster of the United States Navy Band.

WOMEN: watch your BOWELS

What should women do to keep their bowels moving freely? A doctor should know the answer. That is why pure Syrup Pepsin is so good for women. It suits their delicate organism. It is the prescription of an old family doctor who has treated thousands of women patients, and who made a special study of bowel troubles.

It is fine for children, too. They love its taste. Let them have it every time their tongues are coated or their skin is sallow. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is made from fresh, laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other harmless ingredients.

When you've a sick headache, can't eat, are bilious or sluggish; and at the times when you are most apt to be constipated, take a little of this famous prescription (all drug stores keep it ready in big bottles), and you'll know why Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the favorite laxative of over a million women!

ONE-ROOM SCHOOLS.

How much training have the teachers of the 153,000 one-room rural schools of the United States, is a question answered by a recent summary of the Federal Office of Education.

"If all the teachers of one-teacher schools stood side by side, their ranks would extend in an unbroken line 87-110 miles. Assuming this army of teachers were arranged in such a way that the one having received the least amount of training stood at one end and the one having received the largest amount of training at the other, a person reviewing this company would find it necessary to walk a distance of 8 1/2 miles before coming to a teacher with a training equivalent to two years of high school.

"One would have to walk half the entire distance before approaching a teacher with training equal to high school graduation, and would have to continue his walk for a total distance of 67 3/5 miles before reaching the first teacher with the equivalent of two years of normal school education. The last would be continued to within 13 miles of the end of the line before one who had the equivalent of a college education would be reached.

"What of the composite teacher of this group?"

"Since men teachers are a great scarcity in one-teacher schools, the typical teacher is a woman about twenty-seven years old. She would have a total education of four years and one month above grade school; her teaching experience would total two years and six months; she would receive an annual salary of $874; she would have under her care a total of two to two farm children, and she would be employed in her school for a total of 152 days a year.

"Although one-teacher schools are being abandoned at the rate of 4,200 per year in favor of consolidated schools, one-teacher schools still open their doors to more farm children than any other type of school."—Masonic Bulletin.

'MORATORIUM' ON CORN, OATS IS IOWA'S AIM.

Des Moines, Iowa, Sept. 9 (AP).—Iowa farm grain dealers are trying for a "moratorium" on corn and oats.

The Iowa Farmers Grain Dealers association is proposing to its 600-farmer elevator companies that they make no sales of these grains until higher prices return. Fifteen cents for corn, leaders of the association assert, are not proper returns.

W. H. Thompson, secretary of the association, outlined the aim of the movement yesterday when he said that both the old and new crops would be held back "until prices reach a level where the farmer can at least pay the overhead and get through the coming winter."

Leaders of the movement said that grain dealers associations in Nebraska, Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, Kansas, Minnesota and North and South Dakota would be asked to co-operate, and the action of the governors of Oklahoma and Texas in curtailing oil production were advanced as an indication of what might be accomplished with products of the "rain producing states."

As an aid to farmers in withholding grain, revision of the Iowa warehouse law has also been suggested. At the same time a delegation of farmers planned to call on Gov. Dan Turner next Friday to urge him to attempt to set the price of corn at 60 cents a bushel from the day of their interview until Jan. 1, when it would be fixed at 65 cents. A petition recommending such a move was adopted by Iowa farmers at a recent meeting at Newton, Iowa.

THE NEWSPAPER.

I would rather write about newspapers than any of the fine and useful institutions of modern culture and civilization. I like to think of them as alert sentinels of the public conscience, as crusaders for progress and prosperity, as unselfish champions of the right and traditional enemies of the wrong. They are all of that, and more; but if they survive they must be business institutions, too.

However well managed newspaper plants may be, they seldom earn returns commensurate with the time and effort and talent expended. In deed, were they not slaves to the subtle incense of printers' ink, did they not love their work more and money less, there would be no newspaper men and therefore no newspapers.

Yet business men—men who wouldn't think of asking the druggist to donate a five-cent drink—will resort to any device to slip into the newspaper advertising camouflaged as news. They forget that newspapers are not some form of private endowment philanthropy; they do not stop to think they ask a business substitution to donate the only commodity it has for sale. (Subscriptions are obtained at an actual loss, for the business purpose of making valuable the space offered to advertisers. It costs any newspaper more to print and mail a year's production than the reader pays for it.)

Frequently good news stories are ruined by almost ludicrous attempts to write into them clumsily concealed advertising. At the present time, the publicity for a splendid and worthy movement, a movement to which every newspaper is pleased to lend its influence, is disfigured by persistent mention of its leader's business connection. Even when the newspapers submit to the imposition, no good purpose is served because the public sees—not the guiding genius of a great progressive program—but the slapstick antics of a publicity hound.

There are two very good reasons why advertising should be presented in paid space. First, the advertiser who succeeds in "slipping in" unpaid advertising annoys and irritates the reader who feels he has been misled the victim of a fraud; and second, the newspaper that consistently permits advertising to appear in its news columns ceases to be a business institution and therefore soon ceases to be a newspaper.

Modern newspapers have a larger capital investment than the average business institution, skilled craftsmen must be employed, and large overhead expenses must be met. Properly supported, and with its advertising space sold at a legitimate profit, the newspaper can render the essential and constructive service expected by a critical public. Without that support and paid advertising, it quickly becomes a miserable reminder of the splendid institution that might have been.—The Editorial Digest.

Lawyer—This business of defending criminals is getting worse every day.

Sabinal	0	1	.000

Sabinal, Texas, Sept. 14, 1931.—The D'Hanis Pirates copped the first game of the play off for the championship of Highway No. 90 league Sunday by defeating the Sabinal Hustlers 3-1 on the local lot.

The game developed into a duel between the two star pitchers of the league Thornberry and Nester, but Nester won out due largely to spectacular support accorded him. Each allowed six hits and walked three men while Thornberry hit one and struck out 9, Nester hit two and struck out three.

The defeat was a result of the inability of Sabinal to hit with men on. The Pirates pulled some remarkable fielding plays, once converting an attempted sacrifice bunt into a double play.

I. Arnim and Giffin turned in the outfielding features of the game when they grabbed what seemed like sure hits and kept runners from crossing the plate.

The Hustlers scored in the first inning when Butler walked, stole second and scored on Giffin's hit. The Pirates scored two in the third on an infield hit a walk and an error as the next two batters were retired at first, no play being possible at home.

The series will be resumed at D'Hanis next Sunday.

SOUP'S ON!

The manager of a local restaurant was terribly embarrassed to see a stranger at one of his tables wearing a napkin in the old-fashioned way—tucked under his chin.

It would never do to have such a thing as this, but on the other hand it was a ticklish problem to decide how the napkin could be removed.

Calling a waitress he asked her to suggest the removal as tactfully as possible. Five minutes later he almost fainted when the young lady posed in front of his customer and said seriously, "Shave or hair cut, Sir?"

ONE FARMER'S EXPERIENCE WITH BEES.

By V. M. Couch.

This is really no hard luck story to tell, but one where a man might have done better had he studied up on the business. This farmer gives some interesting facts as to the reason why he failed at beekeeping, and says: "I see no reason why any farmer cannot keep a few colonies of bees and produce the family honey supply, but when the general farmer thinks he can make easy money at keeping bees, with very little, if any, knowledge of the business, he stands a good chance of losing; therefore, it

A Useful Work

THE Delineator Institute is doing a useful work in bringing out into the open old-time prejudices against canned foods which have absolutely no foundation in fact. In a recent questionnaire sent out to 386 of its consultant housekeepers it asked the question: "Do you leave food in the can after the can is opened?" More than 300 housekeepers, 303 to be exact, answered "No," and only 17 answered "Yes." To the further question: "Have you any prejudice against this?" 271 answered "Yes" and "53" answered "No."

As a matter of fact, the still widespread belief that it is dangerous to leave food in an opened can is not true. As a general rule, foods remain in better condition until eaten if the unused portion is kept in the can. Spoilage results from exposure to dust, air and insects, and to the bacteria with which any dish may be covered. The can, when opened, is entirely sterile and there is nothing about it which will contribute to the spoilage of food.

No Good Reasons

None of the reasons assigned by these housekeepers for emptying foods from the cans had any scientific basis. For when the marvelous can machinery gives the last crimp to the top of the modern sanitary can, food and can are then "cooked" at a high degree of heat, which sterilizes both food and the "insides" of that marvelous preserving pot, the tin can.

D'HANIS, TEXAS, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 16, 1931

Miss Evelyn Koch spent several days in Del Rio visiting relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Ryan, Mrs.

T. L. Enderle and children and Miss Leona Enderle of San Antonio were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Rieber and family last week.

Hilmer Koch left for Austin where he will enter St. Edward's University. He was accompanied by his father, Mr. Joe Koch, and sister, Cornelia.

Mr. Jacob Vogel and children, Josephine and Henry, and Miss Clara Fillinger spent Wednesday in San Antonio.

Mrs. Arnold Zerr returned to Houston Thursday after several days' visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Finger.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Statzenberger of San Antonio spent Sunday and Monday with relatives here.

Miss Mary Griffin of Devine arrived here Saturday. Miss Griffin is a teacher of the High School here.

Mr. P. M. Koch was a LaCoste visitor Monday.

Misses Viola and Corinne Koch were San Antonio visitors Thursday.

Mrs. Regina Deckert was taken to San Antonio for medical treatment.

Mrs. T. E. Woodrome of San Antonio, Mrs. R. Reynolds of Hondo, and Mrs. Bill O'Donald of Hondo were here Monday morning visiting Mrs. Deckert.

Mrs. Alphonso Boog and baby returned home from Sabinal last Friday.

is better to go slow for a while and keep the size of the apiary down to the limits of his experience."

An experienced person in the bee business should read the best literature on the subject thoroughly, besides getting some practical knowledge of a bee man, before attempting to keep even one colony. He should study his locality, find out what species he may depend upon for nectar and their period of bloom, and note all down in black and white, so that he may know approximately when surplus room may be needed, although there are some variations from year to year. It pays to have things ready when starting, as will be noted by what this man says: "I started thinking that I could keep bees in any old way and there is where I failed. When I was in doubt I would wait until I saw some one whom I thought knew about the work. I depended upon this sort of information for two or three years to learn some of the most simple questions which I might have learned in two or three hours of a real practical bee man or by reading some reliable text book on the subject. I had gotten hold of old, odd-sized hives, which really were fit only for kindling wood. I did not know about the control of swarming, but had many swarms, many of which disappeared, probably on account of unsuitable quarters. Bees were lost by disease, when some practical knowledge would have saved them or prevented it in the first place. In fact, it is a wonder to me that any survived with the ignorant care I gave them."

"After a while I found a man who gave me some reliable and practical information. His advice was to get out of the bee business entirely or get some modern equipment and read up on the work. I decided to take the advice of this man, and leased my small apiary to this man for a year, and during this time I watched and studied his plans and system. The result was that the cash returns from my bees the first year was more than ten times as much as mine had been for six years, and I now realize that if the apiary is recognized as a business which pays its way when properly handled, and the farmer studies beekeeping and keeps abreast of progress in the work, he can make it pay."

Where mice are constant pests in fields or orchards, the Biological Survey, of the United States Department of Agriculture, recommends the placing of poison stations where the mice will have ready access to them. These will protect the bait from the weather and keep it in good condition for a long time. Wide-mouthed bottles or jars, small drain-tiles, tin cans, or commercial stations now on the market are suitable. A practical home-made station may be made from galvanized sheet metal and pipe. Cut the sheet metal into a section 5 by 10 inches. Bend the metal over a 2-inch pipe and fasten by four nails to wooden bases 1 by 2 1/4 by 6 inches. This resembles a "covered wagon," and affords good shelter for the bait. Set one station in a dry place with good air circulation near the base of each tree. Covering the stations with coarse brush or prunings makes them more attractive to the mice. Examine them periodically and refill them if necessary.
